

The history of Maryhill is captured in these railings located next to the Forth and Clyde Canal. Glasgow public art specialists Scott Associates were commissioned to produce the 28 panel project which depicts the early days of Mary, whose hilltop dwelling the area is named after, through the industrial revolution and up to the present day.

The artwork is protected and decorated by Colourgalv which will have a minimum life expectancy of 25 years and will provide corrosion protection for over 75 years. Colourgalv is an environmentally friendly coating which does not involve VOC's being released during application.
