

SDS LONDON
ARCHITECTURAL IRONMONGERY

The Rectory Complete Refurbishment for The Rectory

The Rectory is now a beautiful family home, stripped back to its original Architect plans.

SDS London are so proud to be a part of this special project.

SDS LONDON
ARCHITECTURAL IRONMONGERY

In terms of Ironmongery, SDS London were involved in the project from start to finish. Lots of fittings were supplied including locks, cabinet furniture and window fittings.

The property was originally a house that was converted into a care home - until 2021 when it was converted back into a grand family home, as originally intended.

Antique brass was the finish used predominantly in the house, requested by the Designer, who wanted to keep the house as original as possible.

Archways and original decorative architraves were found when construction work started within the interior that opened up the entire history of the property.

SDS LONDON
ARCHITECTURAL IRONMONGERY

The family crest was engraved into the lock forends and brass key rings - to try and bring as much personal life back into the property as possible.

The Designer wanted to keep the house to the original style as much as possible.

Therefore, the original architects drawings were found, and a plan was created to make sure that these were stuck to.

SDS LONDON
ARCHITECTURAL IRONMONGERY

The story behind this property made this a fascinating project to work on.

We are now showcasing the very best projects in which we are lucky to be a part of.

