The new Fitbit offices in Dublin needed to provide an excellent working environment to help their talented staff perform to the best of their abilities. The living wall was chosen to add a stunning feature to the office, provide acoustic properties and promote biophilia - the innate connection between humans and nature.

The ANS Living Wall system was chosen for its modular design and long lasting impact (with maintenance in place the living wall should last forever!). Also as the system uses natural soil, this provides even better sound insulating properties than some other living wall systems. The living wall was installed by our certified partners in Ireland.
